Dr. Grant McClung is President of Missions Resource Group, a world missions resourcing ministry that provides training, consulting, and mentoring to the global Great Commission community www.MissionsResourceGroup.org. He is an Advisory Editor for Christianity Today magazine and a member of the Editorial/Advisory Committee of EMIS, the Evangelism and Missions Information Service (publishers of Evangelical Missions Quarterly). McClung serves on the Executive Board of The Mission Exchange (formerly EFMA) and is Missiological Advisor to the World Missions Commission of the Pentecostal World Fellowship. He is an elected member of the International Executive Council of the Church of God (Cleveland, Tennessee U.S.A.).

COURSE DESCRIPTION

A study of descriptive and prescriptive perspectives on Pentecostal mission, mission(s) and missio(logy). The course reflects upon the distinctive Pentecostal contributions to global mission, discusses key elements in the development of the academic field of Pentecostal missiology, and projects a balanced “Pentecostal Missiological Paradigm” (McClung). Attention is also placed upon Pentecostal collaboration in global/local cooperative initiatives toward the completion of world evangelization.

LEARNING OUTCOMES OF THE GLOBAL MISSIONS DEPARTMENT

The specific learning outcomes for the programs of the Global Missions Department at AGTS include that the student will be able to:

1. make decisions, live and serve according to revealed truth and the will of God
2. develop biblical theology of missions which addresses the contemporary missional context
3. utilize the tools of the social sciences to develop a plan to communicate the gospel in word and deed to persons of another culture
4. facilitate the ongoing process of contextualization as missional leaders and communities of faith in specific settings
5. articulate a Spirit driven missiology and praxis
6. identify, exemplify and foment biblical leadership

THE PURPOSE, PROGRAM GOALS, SPECIFIC LEARNING OUTCOMES FOR THE DOCTOR OF MISSIOLOGY DEGREE

1. The purpose of the D. Miss. is to prepare persons for denominational and interdenominational leadership roles in cross cultural ministries both in the United States of America as well as around the globe; to educate persons with specialized expertise in missiology and its cognate disciplines; and to train persons for research and teaching in those disciplines.
2. The D.Miss. program goals are to enrich the practice of missionaries serving with our denomination and other agencies through :
 - a. mastery of missiological and cognate disciplines
 - b. an advanced understanding of theological disciplines and their relationship to missiology
 - c. enhanced ability to provide leadership in cross-cultural ministries, and the capacity to engage in research and teaching
3. The specific learning outcomes for the D.Miss. program are that the upon completing the program the student will be able to:
 - a. express a deepening biblical and theological understanding of Missio Dei and the kingdom of God
 - b. articulate a distinctively Pentecostal theology of intercultural ministry
 - c. describe the historical development of the Christian movement and the participant's role in the contemporary world
 - d. discern the Holy Spirit's direction in the fulfillment of the mission of God in diverse cultural settings and to contextualize effective expressions of the Gospel
 - e. establish priorities of evangelism, church planting, leadership formation, and compassion ministries

- f. model a continuing commitment to personal spiritual formation and growth as a member of God's missionary people
- g. illustrate the close relationship between the local church and missions; and
- h. make a scholarly contribution to the understanding and practice of intercultural ministry.

OBJECTIVES

Upon completion of this course, the diligent student will be able to demonstrate and articulate, through oral and written communication:

1. An understanding of the key historical dynamics in the formative years of Pentecostal missions.
2. A grasp of the foundational beliefs that formed an early Pentecostal theology of mission.
3. An awareness of significant strategic methodologies of Pentecostal missionaries and the unique blend of spontaneity and structure in missions practice.
4. A familiarity with key developments (issues, literature, personnel, etc.) in the more recent history of academic Pentecostal missiology (1985 – 2010).
5. An appreciation for the interdependency of Pentecostals and other movements in the global Great Commission community.
6. A projection of a balanced Pentecostal missiological paradigm toward the completion of world evangelization.

METHODOLOGY

The course will include lectures, class discussions, and written and oral seminar presentations from students followed by student critique. It will also involve library and field research in the preparation of a final assessment document.

KEY CLASS TOPICS (exemplary, not exhaustive)

Historical and theological dynamics in formative Pentecostal mission
 Definitions and applications of Pentecostal mission, mission(s), and missio(logy)
 Review and assessment of Pentecostal missions strategy (past and present)
 Centennial observations of 1910 – 2010 as opportunities for reflection/projection
 Cooperation and partnership in mission
 Reflections upon emergence of Pentecostal missiology in the academy (1985 -2010)
 Implications of a “Pentecostal Missiological Paradigm” (McClung)

COURSE REQUIREMENTS

Pre-Session: (Pre-Session assignments/papers are due the first day of class – please bring them with you. You may also email them in advance to the professor).

1. Study carefully all required textbook readings.
2. Write an interactive review/critique of each of the five required textbooks, including the specific contribution it brings to Pentecostal missiology. The review/critique should be three pages for each text = 15 pages total.
3. Prepare 2-3 significant discussion questions for each of the required texts to be used in class discussions. Specifically probe the unique contribution of each author/editor and the relevance of their particular text for the future of global Pentecostal missiology and the completion of world evangelization.
4. Provide biographical and explanatory information on yourself, your specific ministry context, research/writing interests, and future missions ministry objectives as requested in Pre-Session correspondence from the professor.

In Session

1. Attend class and participate in discussions.
2. Review the supplementary readings provided in the course instructional packet (to be distributed on first day of class).
3. Write, and present in class, a one page statement/projection of the final research paper(s), including the proposed topic(s) and basic outline points. Note: this is only an In-Session projection and may be altered/edited as you move into the Post-Session research and writing.
4. Participate (on final class day) in a course evaluation/assessment.

Post-Session:

1. Based upon your general background reading, the required textbook readings (and attendant footnotes and bibliographies), and the recommended supplementary reading, provide a revised bibliography of at least five additional sources (books, articles, papers, etc.) that should be included into future versions of this class topic. This includes resources published between the initial posting of the class syllabus (December 2009) and the start of the class (July 2010). This would also include resources published by the student and/or pending publication. Suggestions for additional internet resources (websites, links, key word searches, etc.) should also be included.

2. Write an integrative paper or research project (final assessment document) on some aspect of the class material.
 - a. The paper should be 20 - 25 pages in length.
 - b. It should be richly footnoted, representing thorough dialogue with significant scholarly literature on the topic. You must do adequate bibliographic research on this paper in order to fulfill the course requirements.
 - c. It should be relevant to your missionary work, and it should offer an applied approach to the issue at stake. In other words, do not simply discuss a theoretical issue. Rather, apply it to some concrete missionary situation.
 - d. The paper/research project should project distinctive Pentecostal contributions to the field of missiology.
 - e. If your paper is designed as a proposed article for publication, look for models and editorial guidelines/expectations in journals such as Missiology, International Review of Mission, International Bulletin of Missionary Research, etc. Alternatively, it might be aimed at a practical journal such as Evangelical Missionary Quarterly, though it must be longer and more thoroughly documented than is customary for that journal.

GRADING PROCEDURE

General Guidelines for Formal Writing Assignments

1. Each writing assignment should be typed, double-spaced in a 12 point font. It should contain your name and should conform to Turabian, APA, or other formal academic style manual.
2. Name and Title page per standard AGTS format.
3. Inclusive language is imperative except for references to the Trinity or when directly quoting a source.
4. Always cite sources properly, even if you are only referring to an author's ideas. Accuracy and integrity are critical.
5. Excellent grammar, spelling and organization are assumed at this level – make use of spell/grammar check computer programs, proofread carefully, and ask a colleague to proofread your work.
6. Pre-session and In-session papers may be submitted in class (hard, print copies) and/or electronically via email attachment prior to class. Post-Session papers should only be submitted electronically via email attachment to Grant McClung at the following email address: gmeuro@earthlink.net.

7. Always avoid discriminatory language regarding age, culture, disabilities, gender or race (see syllabus section, “Non-Discriminatory Language” below).
