BIB 532 Hermeneutics

James D. Hernando

Summer, 2002

COURSE SYLLABUS

COURSE DESCRIPTION

A study of the various methods and principles of biblical interpretation which have been employed up to the present and the necessity for the grammatical-historical method of interpretation. The student will learn and apply the tools and methods of both general and special hermeneutics.

OBJECTIVES

At the successful completion of this course the student should be able to demonstrate mastery of the course material, specifically, by being able to do the following:

Knowledge:

1. Discuss his/her understanding of the nature and work of hermeneutics as it relates to the task of exegesis and expository preaching.
2. Identify and discuss the significant developments in the history of biblical interpretation, describing their characteristic strengths and weaknesses.
3. List and define the principles that are: 1) appropriate for interpreting texts in general (general hermeneutics) 2) appropriate for interpreting specific literary genres (special hermeneutics) within the Bible.
4. Give adequate evidence of familiarity with the specialized terminology connected with the science of biblical interpretation.

Skills:

1. Apply the principles of interpretation to the exegesis biblical text.
2. Identify the use or violation of sound hermeneutical principles in an example of biblical exposition.
3. Identify major critical issues in contemporary hermeneutics and isolate the hermeneutical presuppositions at work among the divergent views.

Attitudes:

1. Form an increased awareness of the responsibility incumbent upon the Christian to rightly divide the word of truth.
2. Appreciate the task of biblical exegesis in the discovery and illumination of the biblical text.
3. Appreciate more fully the nature of biblical revelation and its timeless utility as an instrument of the Holy Spirit to speak to our lives.
